

MINORITY LEADER

The Candidates for That Position in the House.

MR. SULZER MAKES A STATEMENT

Thinks His Selection Would Strengthen the Party.

THE LEADING ISSUES

Representative Sulzer of New York arrived in Washington today, and his friends are starting in with a vigorous canvass for the minority nomination for the speakership.

In the absence of a contest within the majority for the speakership of the House, the minority appear to be determined to make a great fight over the empty honor of a nomination.

There seems, too, to be a good deal of politics in their fight. Three candidates for the nomination are now in Washington—Richardson, Bankhead and Sulzer. For many weeks they have been making a canvass without any definite indication of what the outcome might be, and at this stage of the canvass it is being suggested that after all a "rank outsider" may step and get the honor.

The friends of Mr. Sulzer, contrary to what has been said from time to time, appear to be making an earnest fight for his nomination, and they are putting up a very strong political plea for his selection. They have taken up headquarters at Chamberlain's Hotel, and the word has gone out that the fight is to be made to win if possible.

Mr. Sulzer's Statement.

Mr. Sulzer said today: "I am a candidate for the democratic leadership of the House of Representatives, and my friends think my chances of securing the honor are very good. I would not be a candidate if I did not believe my selection would strengthen our party in the east, and help us carry the doubtful states of New York and New Jersey in the next presidential contest."

"I will have the votes of the solid delegations from New York and New Jersey, and I have received assurances of substantial support from other states. At this critical time in the affairs of the democratic party it seems the wishes of the leaders of the east should be consulted, and they favor my selection, not on account of myself or my personality, but because they believe it to be good party politics, and that it will strengthen the party in the pivotal states of New York and New Jersey in the great contest next year."

"I tried to do no one in my allegiance and loyalty to the party, and I have no apologies to make for my support of William J. Bryan on the principles enunciated in the Chicago platform."

Bryan and the Chicago Platform.

Mr. Sulzer is accompanied by Representative Daily of New Jersey, also a candidate for Bryan's nomination, and there may be a deal of significance attached to the boldness with which they avow their loyalty to the Chicago platform and Bryan. Far beyond the empty position of the honor of the leadership of the minority for the next session, the two New York democratic organizations as further confirmation of the declarations of loyalty to Bryan made by Sulzer since his return from Europe and as indicating that whatever there may be behind it all, the eastern democratic organization, whatever it amounts to in the near future, is going to be compelled to stand chances with Bryan and the Chicago platform.

This is regarded as particularly significant, because the fact that the Alabama candidate for the minority nomination appeared to feel some months ago that the thing to do was to let up on the Chicago platform and Bryan. It is construed to mean that Bryan is not going to have opposition from the east in the national convention, and that he is surely going to be the candidate, come what may of his canvass.

What Representative Daily Says.

Representative Daily said that the "regular" eastern democracy felt that the southern and western democrats should give them all possible encouragement. The holders of the party, he said, had heretofore been held largely by the south and west, and that he thought now they could well afford to help as much as they could toward the up-building of the party of regular democracy in the east. Mr. Sulzer, who had been selected as the eastern candidate, said he had been loyal to Bryan and the Chicago platform, and that he was a whole country, south, east or west. He had made his canvass for Congress in New York in 1898, and he was now supporting Bryan and the Chicago platform, and had led the ticket. His selection was a recognition by the eastern democracy of Bryan and the Chicago platform, and he thought the democrats of the south and west ought to be glad to honor a Chicago platform. Bryan, democratic, always loyal and outspoken, who could hold the support of the eastern democracy. The support of Sulzer, he said, was purely honorary, merely to compliment him, but was in earnest and would stick to him to the last.

The Leading Issues.

Speaking of democratic politics in general, Mr. Daily said that a declaration of principle by the democratic party was a principle upon which would always be correct. Bimetallism, the free coinage of silver, would not be abandoned; it would hold its place in the party creed. It would not, however, in his opinion, be the dominant issue in 1900 as it was in '96 for the reason that other issues had arisen which would probably overshadow it. Bimetallism, in his opinion, would be anti-imperialism and anti-trust. The regular New Jersey of New Jersey, he said, wanted a fight made on trusts, and he wanted to vindicate themselves from any responsibility for the open-door policy for trusts that had been adopted in New Jersey.

Secretary Root Favors Civil Government in Cuba and New Possessions.

Secretary Root has furnished the President with a synopsis of his annual report for use in connection with the preparation of his forthcoming message to Congress.

Among the more important recommendations in the report of the Secretary of War is one providing for the immediate establishment of civil governments in Cuba and Porto Rico under the auspices of the United States. This includes the appointment of civil governors and the inauguration of a system of suffrage, with educational and property qualifications.

Secretary Root also devotes considerable space to the consideration of the situation in the Philippines, and recommends the inauguration of a civil government, headed by a governor or by a commission, as soon as practicable, after the suppression of the present insurrection. This government also will include the right of suffrage, with certain qualifications.

The immediate construction of a cable from the United States to the Philippines is strongly advocated. It is estimated that such a cable can be built for about $10,000,000, including connections at Honolulu.

Although no recommendation is made for a reorganization of the army, it is pointed out that the army will have to be continued at its present strength for many months to come.

Adjourns Until Tuesday.

The Court of Appeals this afternoon adjourned until Tuesday, December 5.

Stocks Took a Buoyant Turn Under Mixed Buying.

Heavy Trading in B. and O. at an Advance.

GENERAL MARKET REPORTS

Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.

NEW YORK, November 24.—Today's market was active and in some respects decidedly strong in character. The buying early in the day was mixed, the short interest covering freely over the double holiday. Later on the demand for the specialties was aggressive, and some very substantial advances were recorded. The buying of Baltimore and Ohio was extremely liberal in volume, the preferred stock responding easily for an advance of more than 4 per cent.

One order for 25,000 shares of this stock was largely instrumental in forcing the later advance in price. For several days there have been accumulating orders in this stock and the continued demand has developed the fact that there is little pressure of long stock.

Around the day's high level the trading was extremely active and unusually confident. The preferred stock is likely to get its full 4 per cent dividend at an early date, but since there are several preferred stocks certain to do the same there would seem to be little excuse for centering all the business upon one at an increase of 4 per cent over its neighbors. The demand at times was most urgent, and the balance of the list suffered from neglect. The Union Pacific shares were active, the common stock selling up under a good demand, based on earnings and the belief in the ultimate carrying out of the transcontinental project.

The demand for all the low-priced railroad stocks was good, and there can be little doubt that any increase in the commission house activity will center around this group.

Semi-official reports of earnings on the steel stocks are most gratifying, and a movement in them is among the winter's larger probabilities. All of the common stocks in this class of properties were well taken during the day.

Consolidated Gas declared a quarterly dividend of 1 per cent and announced its determination not to advance rates at this time. The double announcement was followed by a 5 per cent decline in the price of the stock.

Leather common sold down easily under realizing sales and a lack of manipulative support. Weakness in the two properties just named failed to influence the general market, however. All of the usual estimates on the bank statement predicted a favorable report. The banks have gained a few hundred thousand dollars on their interior business. This fact, coupled with the government's bond purchases, should make a good report, especially in the reserve fund, the bank statement and any success of the British in the Transvaal should make next week's market one of unusual interest.
